

Abstract of the Disclosure

5 A single end to differential signal converter comprising a low-frequency transmission step, which mixes the direct current and low-frequency components of single-ended signals with in-phase voltage signals to generate low-frequency signals, and a high-frequency transmission step, which mixes the high-frequency component of these single-ended signals and these low-frequency transmission signals to generate differential signals.